The Psychology of Peace Promotion

Global Perspectives on Personal Peace, Children and Adolescents, and Social JusticeSeries: Peace Psychology Book Series

- Represents a wide range of cultural contexts, including authors and subject matters from under-represented areas, such as Africa and South America.
- Provides an overview that will inform individuals on how to create and promote peace around the world.
- Focuses on the active promotion of peace, rather than as a passive reaction to violence.

As expressed by the United Nations Secretary, “peace does not occur by happenstance.” Promoting and sustaining peace requires targeted effort. This groundbreaking volume seeks to inspire its readers to develop a better understanding of peace and the means of promoting peace in a sustainable way.

The book builds on previous volumes of peace psychology by drawing on peace research and practice in five continents of the world (Africa, Asia, Europe, North America and South America) and discussing emerging interdisciplinary and disciplinary theories and actions. Each chapter in this volume begins with a theoretical framework for understanding peace, followed by a critical review of peace promotion in a specific setting, and concludes with an illustration of psychological principles or theories in either a narrative format or an empirical investigation.

Included among the topics:

- Trauma and Mindfulness in the Peacebuilding Process.
- Promoting a Peaceful Generation through Parenting, Education, and Civic Engagement.
- Forgiving, Reconciling, and Peace-Building in Refugee Contexts.
- Public Engagement and Climate Change Impact.
- Qualitative Methods for Advancement of Peace Research.

The Psychology of Peace Promotion leads its readers to a better knowledge of how to promote and sustain peace in varied settings around the world, and lends specific focus on aiding the peace researcher, practitioner, and teacher in learning about relevant cutting-edge peace promotion strategies. It presents a number of innovative approaches and illustrates their applicability to specific social problems, settings and populations. The volume is pointedly relevant for both practice-based and academically-based scientists, mental health professionals, administrators, educators, and graduate students from various disciplines seeking to contribute to the promotion and sustenance of peace using theoretically sound yet innovative and creative approaches.

For the complete list of the contributions to this volume, see the backside of this flyer!
